A. 406 pp. Cloth, 2. 50, postage, 20 cents. New York: The Neale Publishing Company. 1906. Professor Hollidavs book establishes beyond question his contention that the South has produced a literature so distinctive in its fundamental conception and growth as to deserve separate attention. This History of Southern Literature is the first effort to give the connected story of the development of the literature of the South from its earliest days to the present time--a worthy undertaking worthily performed. Beginning with A True Relation of Virginia, written in 1607 by Captain John Smith, Professor Holliday reviews the work of nearly ISO distinctively Southern writers, including, of course, many of minor importance, but including in the list, also, such conspicuous names as Poe, Timrod, Harris, Hayne, Ryan, Lanier, Hopkinson Smith, Murfree, and Page, together with others that are well known, though less prominent. Professor Hollidays appreciations of the work of the writers whom he discusses are generally just, and his book as a whole is a useful contribution to American literary history. w. h. h. The Life Of Charles A. Dana. With portrait. By Tames Harrison Wilson. 545 pp. Cloth. 3. 00, net. New York: Harper and Brothers. 1907. As one of the four or five great journalists of this country, Charles A. Dana won a reputation that has made his name a household word. Many who have admired the genius of the famous editor of the New York Sun, however,...
